

American Association of University Women – Rockford Area Branch

Empowering women and girls since 1881

March 4, 2019

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Farrier to talk with AAUW about her career

ROCKFORD— ROCKFORD--The American Association of University Women (AAUW)-Rockford Area Branch will hear Lisa Day talk about her journey from corporate lawyer to farrier at 1 p.m., March 23 in the Lakeside Hills Subdivision shelter house, 4188 Lakeside Dr., Rockford.

During her Women’s History Month presentation, Day will talk about her journey from corporate lawyer to farrier, a non-traditional career for a woman. Weather permitting, Truffles, her mini-horse, will accompany her. This program is free and open to the public. Refreshments will be served.

AAUW is a national organization of women and men who hold an associate or equivalent (e.g., RN), baccalaureate, or higher degree from a qualified educational institution, and students enrolled in a qualified institution. The Rockford Branch was founded in 1929 and its mission is to advance equity for women and girls through advocacy, research and philanthropy.
